

Sandos Caracol Eco Resort celebrates big time this Day of the Dead in Mexico

October 24, 2018, Playa del Carmen.- This November 1 and 2, 2018, as every year, Sandos Caracol launches its traditional Day of the Dead celebration to honor life and death in a very Mexican way.

From typical food from the different regions of Mexico, traditional games and shows, to a great parade of animated skulls (catrinas, in Spanish) Sandos Caracol gets dressed in flowers and skulls during the first two days of November.

This eco resort is distinguished from the rest because it is always enhancing both the Maya culture and Mexican traditions, and the Day of the Dead became the biggest celebration of the year at this hotel in Playa del Carmen, available at no extra cost for guests staying those nights at Sandos Caracol and Sandos Playacar and for those who purchase a Daypass.

Children and adults from all over the world can enjoy making their own sugar skull, painting their faces, enjoy a concert and Maya ceremonies, as well as witness the traditional Day of the Dead's altar display and contest; there will be fun, culture and mysticism all in one place.

Among the most memorable activities is the Mexican cemetery, where guests get to be a part of this tradition by writing the names of their deceased on the graves and dedicating them a night like no other.

Exhibitions, tours, contests, poetry and delicious Mexican dishes promise to mark the life of everyone who visits Sandos Caracol this Day of the Dead and dares to experience, first hand, how life and death are honored in Mexico.

ABOUT THE DAY OF THE DEAD

The Day of the Dead is a Mexican holiday celebrated throughout Mexico, and exists before the arrival of the Spaniards. In 2008, the tradition was included in the Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity by UNESCO.
