

THE HISTORY OF THE RODIZIO

The rodizio goes back to the turn of the 20th century with the Brazilian Gauchos that lived in South America's Pampas region: rich and fertile soil with a mild climate that was ideal for cattle and abundant fruit and vegetable farming. To celebrate the good harvests and to give thanks, the Gauchos threw big parties where they served plenty of fruits, vegetables, beef, chicken, pork, fish and hunted animals, which were all carefully marinated in herbs and roasted over pit res using long sword-like skewers known as "espetos". The Gauchos served their guests all of the meat still on the skewer (espeto), and cut the meat directly onto each guest's plate. At Fogo do Brazil, we continue this delicious tradition and offer you the art of roasted meat served on espetos with the cooking secrets of Brazil.

We would like to invite you to start your gastronomic experiences with soup and a salad bar

RODIZIO MEATS

Argentinian Chorizo

Traditional sausage marinated in fine herbs

Turkey Supreme

Marinated in white wine, parsley, onion, garlic, oil, salt, and pepper

Chicken Breast

With a traditional marinade made with white wine, peppers, paprika, oil, garlic, and spices

Cattle Prod

Brazilian-style steak marinated in red wine, fine herbs, salt, and black pepper

Flank Steak

Skirt steak marinated in natural condiments, vegetable oil, salt, and pepper

New York

Fine steak marinated in fine herbs, sea salt, and black pepper

Mustard Pork Loin

Marinated in garlic, onion, oil, and creole mustard

Grilled Pineapple with Cinnamon

Caramelized with sugar, cinnamon, and brandy

Sirloin

Mouthwatering steak marinated in chimichurri sauce, red wine, black pepper, and salt

Spring Taco

Sautéed mixed vegetables, cabbage, spices, olive oil, garlic, served with mushroom risotto and broccoli sauce

DESSERTS

Baked Alaska

Ice cream cake coated with whipped cream and ambéed liqueur

Crepes

Sweet homemade crêpes with caramelized strawberry, peach, and banana

Raw coconut cheesecake

ALLERGENS

CONTAINS GLUTEN

EGGS

CELERY

MUSTARD

DIOXIDE SULFUR AND SULFATE

VEGAN